II Ortaliq Aziya st kongresi
II Central Asian Dairy Congress

Trkistan | 26-27.11.24

The unique culture of Central Asia requires a special approach to the development of the dairy industry. The conditions for keeping animals necessitate a new perspective on the development of production technologies - the development of pasture-based livestock farming technologies, a special approach to genetics, and a reassessment of the principles of efficiency and optimality in milk production.

The natural conditions of Central Asian countries allow the region to aspire to leadership in the production of mare and camel milk. The growing population in all Central Asian countries guarantees an increased demand for food products, both traditional and innovative.

The regions of Central Asia are now open to the introduction of new technologies from China, Turkey, Korea, India, and Russia. How the dairy industry of Central Asian countries will develop will be discussed by leading global experts from more than 10 countries.

- ◆ More than 200 participants from Central Asian countries and around the world
- ◆ An intensive two-day business program
- ◆ Leading global experts from Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan, Kyrgyzstan, India, Turkey, China, Russia, and other countries
- ◆ Participation of representatives from national and regional authorities
- ◆ Global innovations in milk production and processing
- ◆ Discussion of markets for cow's, camel's, mare's, and other types of milk
